

MEDIA RELEASE - For immediate release

Kokoda Caravans launches Community Support initiative for Zone RV customers following administration Kokoda Caravans has today announced a dedicated support initiative for customers affected by Zone RV entering administration - an event that has left many families facing unexpected financial loss and uncertainty.

Recent news about Zone RV entering administration is heartbreaking. No one deserves to lose their hard-earned money or have their travel plans suddenly fall apart. Families invest not just their savings but their hopes, future adventures and sense of freedom. Kokoda is stepping in to help keep that dream alive where possible.

The company is launching a multi-layered support program available from now until Christmas, or until the dedicated support fund reaches its limit on a first-come basis. Kokoda Caravans Owner Trevor Price said, "Nobody in this industry wants to see families lose their savings or the dream they've been planning for months, sometimes years. As fellow Australian caravan builders, we feel a responsibility to step up in moments like this." Price added, "Over the past seven years, Kokoda has continued to strengthen our operations, customer safeguards and long-term stability. That journey gives us a deep understanding of how moments like this impact people and why genuine support matters." Kokoda emphasises that affected customers should speak with the appointed administrators first. However, Kokoda's team is available to help explain options and next steps — with no pressure, no obligation and no expectation to purchase.

1. Up to $20,000 credit toward a Kokoda

For customers affected by the collapse, Kokoda is offering up to $20,000 credit toward a new Kokoda Peregrine, Sojourn or Summit model. This applies to anyone who has lost a deposit or instalment payment with Zone RV.

Because Kokoda also builds using composite panel construction, the team can match or closely replicate many layouts and features that customers originally ordered.

2. Kokoda establishes a $20,000 Community Support Fund

Kokoda is launching a Community Support Fund with an initial $20,000 contribution, funded directly by Kokoda, with no purchase required from affected customers.

The fund is open to anyone in the caravanning community who wishes to contribute. Every dollar added will go directly toward supporting Zone RV customers who have lost deposits. For every eligible Kokoda caravan sold under this initiative, Kokoda will contribute an additional $3,000 to the fund. This grows the fund over time but importantly, support begins immediately and unconditionally, without relying on sales.

Kokoda stresses that this initiative is about supporting people first, not replacing orders. A stable, trustworthy caravan industry benefits all manufacturers, customers and communities. This initiative will not impact current Kokoda customer build times or commitments.

Kokoda's leadership team will make themselves available for affected families seeking guidance, providing clarity and support during this uncertain period.
